Beautifully illustrated in full colour and with new poems from the Archbishop of Canterbury, Sense Making Faith is a resource book for spiritual exploration. Using the physical senses of sight, hearing, smell, touch, and taste, as well as the power of the imagination, anyone can discover anew how rich and diverse our world is and find out what God is doing in it.

Beginning from the riches of Christian tradition, each chapter helps spiritual travellers to go on a journey, finding out more along the way about other spiritual seekers and their search for the divine. Each chapter offers a different journey, with opportunities to wonder, pray, reflect, or simply go out and do something that challenges the way we encounter the world.

Sense Making Faith offers a wealth of opportunity for spiritual discovery and deepening faith, a chance to go beneath the surface of everyday life, and experience the divine through paying greater attention to what lies around us. While each chapter's journey is designed for an individual reader, it can also be used by all kinds of groups. Material for group leaders is included in an easy-to-use format, while additional resources and new journeys are also available from the accompanying website.
